

Now running Xoops! - YAXS

NEWS_PDF_AUTHOR: computerguy

NEWS_PDF_DATE: 2004/9/20 21:02:14

We were running PHP-Nuke and had a number of vulnerabilities that we thought we had patched, but got hacked a number of times anyway. Being a PC help site that's over 4600 members, (which is also involved in the fight against spyware/malware) we needed something secure.

Looking into Xoops and starting to use it, I really, REALLY started to like the way it looked, the admin interface, and everything else about it.

We DO use IPB for our forum, which is NOT integrated with Xoops (mostly for security reasons), but we really like Xoops as our CMS!

Come on over and take a look if you like!
<http://www.thatcomputerguy.us>

We were running PHP-Nuke and had a number of vulnerabilities that we thought we had patched, but got hacked a number of times anyway. Being a PC help site that's over 4600 members, (which is also involved in the fight against spyware/malware) we needed something secure.

Looking into Xoops and starting to use it, I really, REALLY started to like the way it looked, the admin interface, and everything else about it.

We DO use IPB for our forum, which is NOT integrated with Xoops (mostly for security reasons), but we really like Xoops as our CMS!

Come on over and take a look if you like!

<http://www.thatcomputerguy.us>