

SOFTECHMATRIX website launched - YAXS

NEWS_PDF_AUTHOR: stmatrix

NEWS_PDF_DATE: 2005/1/14 7:10:00

Today I officially launched the website for my new company SOFTECHMATRIX. This is a dutch-language website about Open Source Consulting and Deployment. Deploying XOOPS for several applications is part of my services.

The layout is based on the great Imago06 theme-series. However, I took it a whole lot further (well, I like to think so). No graphics of the original Imago-theme were used as all graphics were made from scratch to integrate into the design. Furthermore I added graphical buttons to lose the basic XOOPS-look. I also implemented an asymmetric layout for the center-columns, again to lose the basic 'this is a portal-system' look.

Some module-stuff on the site is still in english as I'm working on the translations. All dutch module translations will be released as soon as I get to it.

Let me know what you think about the site. I'm looking forward to the replies here. Also feel free to create a login at my site and put your comments where appropriate, or sign the Guestbook.

The site can be found at:

<http://www.softechmatrix.nl>

For those that can read Dutch and are interested, I have a fairly in-depth document on the site about selecting a Portal-system and why I think XOOPS is one of the best (if not THE best) : Het XOOPS-platform

Today I officially launched the website for my new company SOFTECHMATRIX. This is a dutch-language website about Open Source Consulting and Deployment. Deploying XOOPS for several applications is part of my services.

The layout is based on the great Imago06 theme-series. However, I took it a whole lot further (well, I like to think so). No graphics of the original Imago-theme were used as all graphics were made from scratch to integrate into the design. Furthermore I added graphical buttons to lose the basic XOOPS-look. I also implemented an asymmetric layout for the center-columns, again to lose the basic 'this is a portal-system' look.

Some module-stuff on the site is still in english as I'm working on the translations. All dutch module translations will be released as soon as I get to it.

Let me know what you think about the site. I'm looking forward to the replies here. Also feel free to create a login at my site and put your comments where appropriate, or sign the Guestbook.

The site can be found at:

<http://www.softechmatrix.nl>

For those that can read Dutch and are interested, I have a fairly in-depth document on the site about selecting a Portal-system and why I think XOOPS is one of the best (if not THE best) :

Het XOOPS-platform