This page is from a Argentinean National university Informatics Department, the university is called Universidad Nacional de Quilmes (Nacional Quilmes University)and the department Secretaria de Comunicación y tecnologías de Información (Communication and IT Department).

Here the department tells to the university community the new features which are able to them and which are the informatics problems which the university are suffering.
The site also gives fast access to all the University web based systems.

You can check the page in <http://sertec.unq.edu.ar>

This page is the starting of a migration from all the web systems of the university to XOOPS (multisite).

The design follows the idea and colors of the University main official page (which in the future will be also done in XOOPS).

All the pages are in SPANISH... (sorry for the other people) because it is the native language from argentina.

Please tell us what do you think about the site... THX!!
