I redesigned the theme for my site because despite the fact that i had most of module's templates integrated in the theme something wasn't right...the blocks that come with modules were the same so i thought of making a block that displays a unique image to reflect the module it displays content from.

I also changed the theme to show those complaining about XOOPS 2.2.4 how "dead" it is, yeap that site is a 2.2.4 ...well a hacked one to be able to display blocks the way it does.

So far it is optimized for Firefox and in few days will display correctly in IE
