I've noticed that there are a number of members on Xoops.org with a location in Texas. So, I'm willing to act as a "coordinator" to put together an in-person "users group" for Xoops in the Lone Star State.

If you are interested in helping to form the group, or would just like to participate once it's going, please leave me a private mail here, or use my e-mail address (below) to contact me directly.

I know that if you are like me, having a person you can call and/or visit with can provide that old "two heads are better than one" helpfulness. If there are enough of us interested in this neck of the woods, we can put together a discussion forum on one or more of our sites, or on google groups or somewhere, and have regular get-togethers and/or online chat and phone trees.

Just an idea. If you are interested, drop me a line!
