This release is the first to have added, as some of the many that will be included in future, files to create a more dynamic and flexible so you can more accurately choose the type of module and function that it should have.

Among these early features, there are some files and folders that are created and manipulated before the creation of the module itself, for example css files, changelog, folders and files of languages ??and more.

In future releases you can also see the various controls for creating database fields if this will require the creation of new modules.
