
Module developers PLEASE READ - Developer News

Posted by: Anonymous

Posted on: : 2003/5/14 12:12:27

Everyone is now probably aware that I have decided to 'centralize' module development for the good of Xoops, there are many talented developers out there working on their own and the Xoops community would benefit from such a project.

I would like to propose that each one of you (module developers) can work as part of the module development team and this could improve your development and writing skills.

All developers can use this service as a way of getting help from other developers, distribution of your module, module development (Beta testing, documentation and graphics) and all free of charge.

There will be more information post in the very near future on this project.

If you are interested, then please contact Neon, Herko or myself.