How about sorting out a quick set of guidelines as to how to name files so that we know what version they are designed for?

I just downloaded the errorhandler (errorhandler.zip) and when you dump it in your folder with all the othe downloads it is not that explanatory.

Mabye errorhandler-xoop-rc13.zip would be a better idea?

If there are sort of guideliens everyone sticks to when posting downloads it dose tend t omake things easier.
