Xoops is noted in an article

(<http://www.isscho.org/modules.php?op=modload&name=News&file=article&sid=960>)

by journalist Tony Laszlo (<http://www.isscho.org/modules.php?op=modload&name=phpWiki&file=index&pagename=LaszloBlog>) in Japan's American Chamber of Commerce Journal (<http://www.accj.or.jp>). In addition to introducing web-based collaborative system to a corporate audience, the writer raises two questions - albeit somewhat indirectly - that are perhaps most important for readers of xoops.org:

- 1) Will (open-source) content management systems help cut down on the large amounts of data being sent back and forth between workers/collaborators?
- 2) Will these largely iso-8859-1 / Western-centric systems be able to cater better to non-Western end-users -- or will end users choose local grassroots initiatives (when such alternatives exist)?
